

Executive Board Elections

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Who is eligible to run for an MMASC Executive Board position?

Any active MMASC full member in good standing who meets the eligibility requirements outlined in the MMASC Bylaws may run for an Executive Board position. Candidates should have a demonstrated commitment to local government and the mission of MMASC.

2. What is the expected time commitment?

Executive Board members must attend regular Executive and Full Board meetings (typically two meetings a month), participate in various committee meetings (schedule varies), attend MMASC signature events (four annually), and support organizational initiatives throughout the year. Time commitments vary by position but generally average 10+ hours each month, with additional involvement during conferences and special events.

3. What qualities make a successful Executive Board member?

Successful Executive Board members are collaborative, dependable, and committed to serving the MMASC membership. They are willing to contribute ideas, work as part of a team, communicate effectively, and support MMASC's strategic priorities while representing the organization professionally.

4. What are the responsibilities of an Executive Board member?

Executive Board members provide strategic leadership and governance for MMASC. While responsibilities vary by position (see the MMASC Bylaws), Board members are expected to attend meetings and events, serve on committees, support member programs, participate in strategic planning, promote sponsorship and membership initiatives, serve as ambassadors for the Association, and uphold MMASC's mission and fiduciary responsibilities.

5. Can I run for more than one Executive Board position?

Yes. Candidates may submit nominations for more than one Executive Board position, provided they meet the qualifications for each position. However, if elected, a member may only serve in one Executive Board position.

6. How do I apply or become a candidate?

Interested members should review the candidate qualifications and election timeline, complete the required nomination materials, and submit all documents by the published deadline. Candidates are encouraged to speak with current or former Board members to learn more about the responsibilities and expectations before applying.
